Service Changes Proposed

The Cincinnati Bell Connector hosted a public meeting regarding proposed changes to service on Tuesday, April 2.

The changes, which are aimed at enhancing streetcar ridership without adding to operational costs, would shift service from low-productivity times to higher productivity times. One primary recommendation is being considered, along with two alternatives.

The primary recommendation would reduce late-night service, extend peak-time frequency (three cars in service, 12-minute frequencies) during Friday and Saturday nights until 10 p.m. and introduce 10-minute frequency from 1–8:30 p.m. on Saturdays.

One alternative option would emphasize evening operation and extend peak-time frequency by two hours every day.

The second alternative option would extend peak-time frequency later into the evening Monday through Friday and start peak-time frequency earlier on Saturdays and Sundays.

Honestly dream come true getting to be featured in a local story on the @CB_Connector.

I'm thrilled to see @cincinnati metro thinking of ways to improve service and that @WCPO covered the meeting.
